City Council Accepts New Plans For Buddy Attick Park Restrooms

by Barbara Hopkins

The path to the restrooms at Buddy Attick Park has turned out to be long and winding. A resolution introduced earlier this year to negotiate the purchase of restrooms from Romtec, Inc. of Roseburg, Ore., died after first reading when Councilmember Rodney Roberts, concerned that shipping the building from the West Coast would nullify the green aspects of the structure, requested that staff consult with Patuxent Wildlife Research Refuge about the origins of the restroom facilities there.

Staff then followed up but Patuxent was unable to obtain sufficient information about the origin of its restroom facilities. The additional estimates on the proposed structure proved either too expensive (up to $280,000) or required more city involvement in site preparation and installation than was considered feasible.

At its regular meeting on July 14, the Greenbelt City Council unanimously approved and adopted a resolution to negotiate for the facilities with Restroom Solutions, Inc. of Phoenix, Ariz. This company had also submitted information back in March and staff requested an updated bid. The building will be manufactured and shipped for Restroom Solutions, Inc. by Hunter Knepshield Company in LaGrange, Ken.

In addition to support from council and city staff, the building selected was reviewed and endorsed by the Park and Recreation Advisory Board (PRAB), with a few recommended revisions.

Amenities Provided

The selected building has two restrooms with two stalls and a sink in each room. A mechanical room will provide storage space and access to utilities. The building has several features designed to make it resistant to vandalism and PRAB requested that the building be painted a reddish-brown instead of a light color, to discourage graffiti.

PRAB also proposed green as the color of the roof, which will be metal, and Kevin Mart, president of Restroom Solutions, Inc., who was present at the council meeting, commented that this color scheme was a good selection for the natural setting of the facility. He also said extra paint would be left behind for touch-ups.

The facility will meet all requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act and all federal, state and local codes. There will be a baby-changing station in each restroom and two drinking fountains outside.

Access will be controlled through a programmable system on each door; entry will not be permitted when the park is closed (from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m.). Exterior lights will

by Bay Woods

More than 50 residents expressed views on Greenbelt's public transit systems at the city's Public Meeting Transit Survey in the Greenbelt Community Center on a sweltering Wednesday, July 9 at 7:30 p.m. Residents were particularly concerned about the lack of service on Sunday, proposed changes to Greenbelt routes, overlapping routes and the need for easier access to major hubs.

The meeting was part of a study to improve public transportation in Greenbelt. The city had funded the study with a grant from the Council of Governments and had hired the Virginia-based consulting firm Vanasse Hangen Brustlin (VHB). Representatives of the Council of Governments (COG) helped consultants from VHB facilitate the meeting. Members of the City Council, City Manager Michael McLaughlin and a representative of WMATA were present. The meeting would result in a strategic plan with a series of recommendations.

In March 2008 the city received a draft of the county's Transit Service and Operations Plan (TSOP), which makes several recommendations directly affecting Greenbelt, in particular the restructuring of both the C2 and the R12 Metrobus lines. The city then sent a response to the county, to which the county has just replied, says Terri Hruby, the city's assistant planning director.

When asked about TSOP, Mayor Judith Davis summarized the city's response as "What are you thinking? It decreases services within parts of Greenbelt that had service before."

At the July 9 meeting Hruby introduced Councilmember Konrad Herling, who had first brought the COG grant to the city's attention and has tried to play a role in improving transportation for residents of Greenbelt. "Better planning in mass transit means that more people will take it and will result in fewer cars on the road and less dependence on oil," Herling said as he introduced the VHB presentation. He thanked the residents, saying, "Your input makes a difference."

Privately Herling expressed frustration that the county had no representative present. "I went to the county's meeting six weeks ago and made sure they knew about this," he said. "This reflects larger problems in communication."

VHB representative Kimberly Lieberman made a presentation detailing all current fixed-route bus lines that go through Greenbelt, including five county-controlled The Bus lines, eight Metrobus lines and four University of Maryland shuttle routes. Lieberman then presented maps highlighting areas that fell within either an eighth or a quarter of a mile from a bus line and another frame showing all areas within those distances of bus stops.

Finally Lieberman presented 28 locations as transit-trip generators. Lieberman, who has been doing such presentations for 12 years, asked the typically active Greenbelt crowd to please hold their questions after she had been interrupted several times.

WMATA Response

Larry Glick, a "planner of service" for WMATA stood up and made an unscheduled address on behalf of that organization. Glick said he was "acutely aware of the deficiency of service in Greenbelt." He explained that the "hodge-podge" was left over "from what you had 35 years ago when we took over the private carriers." Glick complained that there has been "no consistent attempt to deal with this in a logical, cost-effective way."

Glick reported that funding and therefore the decisions regarding WMATA routes and services ultimately rested with the counties, explaining the discrepancies between the 30-minute wait time between buses in Montgomery County and the one-hour time in Prince George's County as a result of the difference in fiscal situations of the two counties. WMATA, Glick explained, is only able to meet 30 percent of its operating costs at the fare-box.

Glick claimed that he has been

SHA Staff and Council Meet On U.S. 1/MD 201 Corridor

by Elaine Skolnik

At a Monday, July 21, work-session the Greenbelt City Council will hear a wrap-up of the project planning study by the State Highway Administration (SHA) for the US 1/MD 201 (Baltimore Blvd./Kenilworth Ave./Edmonston Rd.) corridor. Using an electronic presentation with enlarged maps and a chalk board, project study manager Kameel Homes will describe the six refined alternatives for improvements in the corridor. The public meeting will take place in the Municipal Building at 8 p.m.

Before final decisions are made, SHA staff said they will meet with various businesses, communities and homeowner organizations upon request to receive comments and opinions concerning the various options, including the "No Build" alternative that proposes no major improvements.

Alternative 4

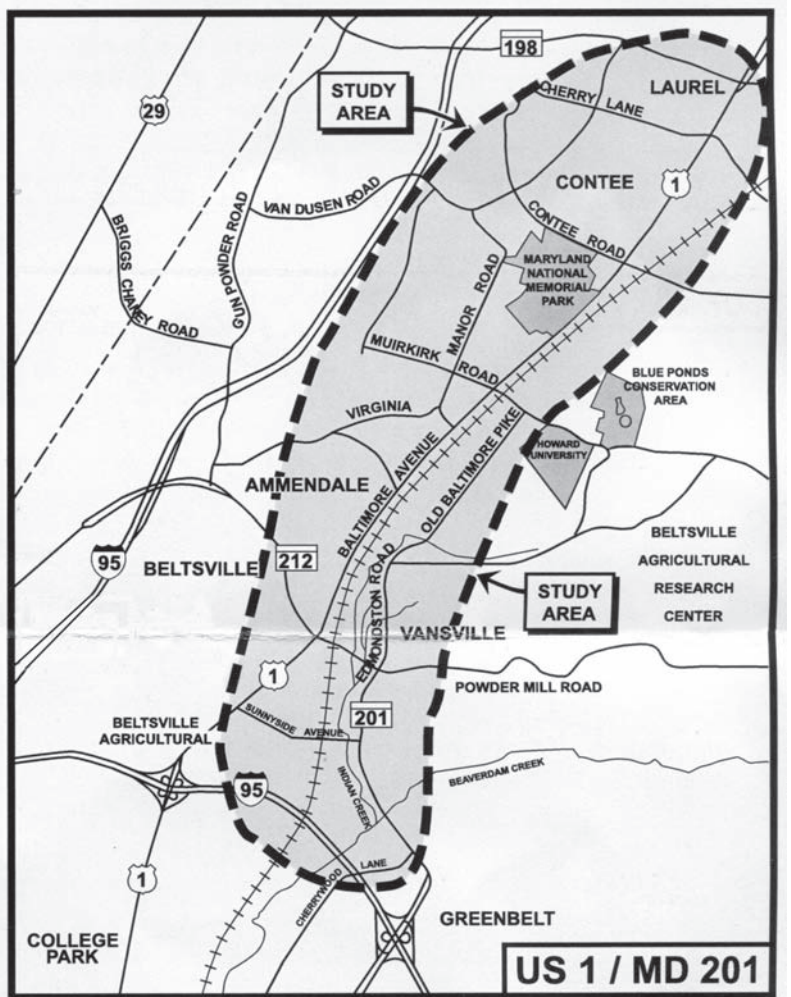

The proposal for Alternative 4 East: 201 will be of most concern to Greenbelters. It would widen and relocate Kenilworth Avenue from Cherrywood Lane in Greenbelt to north of Odell Road. From that point it would follow a new right-of-way, cross over US 1 to its westside and intersect Muirkirk Road in the vicinity of Virginia Manor Road. In this plan, the widening of Kenilworth Ave. would begin at Ivy Lane, continue along Kenilworth to Powder Mill Rd., and then curve east on a new alignment just north of Powder Mill Road onto Beltsville Agricultural Research Center property behind the community of Vansville.

From there it would turn west, crossing the present intersection of MD 201 and Old Baltimore Pike and running parallel to MD 201 before merging into and continuing along Old Baltimore Pike to Odell Rd. (Edmonston Road becomes Old Baltimore Pike north of the Vansville community.)

As it extends north, the proposed road runs parallel and east of Indian Creek crossing over US 1 on a structure 1,200 feet north of Ammendale Road, then

Letters to the Editor

Fact Finding Group Needed on SHL

I was delighted to read Andy Carruthers' letter to the editor First Do No Harm. The following letter looks at the problem from another angle.

In his last paragraph he writes, "Yes, the patient is 'sick' and we must consider all practical remedies." But before doctors prescribe remedies, they first have a diagnosis. A thorough analysis of the underlying causes of a symptom may even lead to the conclusion that there is no sickness at all!

According to Andy, the symptom is the fact that only two percent of registered voters cast their ballot in Springhill Lake in last year's municipal election. However, we have so many unanswered questions regarding the representation and servicing of Springhill Lake. I will enumerate the questions that come to my mind. There are undoubtedly more. Let's all work together on this!

What is the two percent figure based on? How many registered voters live in SHL and how many nonregistered persons? How many noncitizens live in SHL such as foreign students? What is the average time a person/family rents an apartment? How does their interest in city government compare with that of homeowners? Wasn't last year the time that the owner of SHL contemplated razing the apartment buildings and replacing them with more expensive structures? How did that influence the renters' interest in Greenbelt's government? What will be the position/function of the new owner/manager in SHL? Has any resident of SHL with a specific need been denied investigation of that need because SHL is not represented on council? Are the city services in SHL less than in the rest of Greenbelt?

We know that nobody in SHL has offered to run for any position recently. Actually, I understand that at our city's first meeting (discussing the future), which took place in SHL, exactly one SHL resident was present or was it two?

Before we start changing our voting system, let's first understand thoroughly the problem. Maybe there are better methods to improve SHL's input. Therefore I suggest to form, as soon as possible, an investigative, fact finding group. Of course residents of SHL should be part of this group, as should specialists who work in SHL (like Greenbelt CARES personnel). It would be good to have an ACLU representative as a member or observer. Only after we know the real facts can we determine how SHL can be best represented and their needs served.

Crosswalking In Greenbelt

In response to Mr. Brandis' harrowing experience crossing Crescent Road, I too had a close call on Crescent a few months ago with the major difference being that I was less trusting and waited in the crosswalk.

While crossing from Parkway to the Community Church side, I saw a car coming around the bend by the church. I stopped midway in the crosswalk waving my hands to be seen, especially since a man accompanied by two young children (presumably on their way home from Greenbelt Elementary School) were waiting on the opposite side of Crescent facing me. I never dreamed the driver wouldn't stop. Stunned, I looked straight at him as he drove by. He just stared back at me blankly. Clearly his mind was somewhere else: his cell phone.

Having said that, I must admit that the old town district is challenging for drivers, too. Crescent and Ridge Roads are curvy with poor visibility. Many crosswalks throughout town are not positioned at intersections. With a little tweaking though, many could be made safer.

For instance, there is one on Laurel Hill Road and another on Hillside Road where eliminating some parking spaces and removing some hedges would give drivers an unobstructed view of the road's edge from a safe distance. Ditto for the public library crosswalk. And while traffic lights are not fail-safe, I live in mortal fear of hitting a senior citizen near Green Ridge House because he or she refused to use the traffic light provided. This is also a good example of parked cars blocking a clear view of the road's edge.

My least favorite crosswalk, though, has got to be Ridge Road near the police station and Crescent Road. To my mind, it is completely unsafe. With public parks on both sides of the road, a tunnel would give pedestrians an alternative route, especially during rush hour. On Independence Day families would be able to walk safely back and forth from Buddy Attick Park under Crescent Road. Considering the money we spend on fireworks every year, we ought to do this.

We must ask ourselves how serious we are about making some adjustments for safety. Humps are effective. If we are serious, then we should consider them at school crossings. I don't like them but they work. At the very least, we should install those tire-grabbing treads that are felt by drivers. And the speed limit on Crescent Road should never be 30 mph anywhere.

There is so much we can do.

— Jean Lombardo

P.S. I am glad to have this occasion to extend a thank you to all the drivers who put your lights on in the daytime. It helps me see you more easily when I walk and drive.

Beware of Auto Warranty Calls

Maryland Attorney General Douglas F. Gansler is urging consumers to be wary of a marketing campaign attempting to sell extended auto warranties that is targeting citizens on their cellular phones and land lines, as well as through postcards, letters and emails. The marketers offer to sell expensive extended warranties and often "phish" for personal information about the consumer.

Search for Father

"Mamma Mia" stars Amanda Seyfried (Mean Girls) as Sophie, a young woman whose impending wedding leads her to track down her father. This is no easy task, since her mother (played by Meryl Streep) can only narrow it down to three candidates, played by Pierce Brosnan, Stellan Skarsgaard and Colin Firth.

Julie Walters and Christine Baranski round out the cast, all of whom break into ABBA songs at regular intervals.

Director Phyllida Lloyd first brought "Mamma Mia" to Broadway and London's West End and worked with writer Catherine Johnson on the screen adaptation. Both women were very excited to work with Meryl Streep, who in turn has been a fan of the musical for years. Rated PG-13 for some discussion of sex, this movie runs 108 minutes.

Bahá'í Teachings:
How do we build unity and abolish hatred and prejudice?

We must bring our thoughts and actions in line with a belief in the oneness of humankind. When a thought of war enters our minds, immediately replace it with a thought of peace. When a feeling of hate takes shape in our hearts, replace it with a feeling of love. Do everything possible to overcome prejudices, which are among the greatest obstacles to building a better world. The Bahá'í writings teach us how to walk in the ways of unity and help others take the same path.

Special Blood Drive At Greenbelt Subway

Greenbelt Subway at 7555 Greenbelt Road in Greenway Center will host its fourth blood drive on Friday, July 25 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Subway restaurant owner Dhvani Vyas, partnering with the Greater Chesapeake and Potomac Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross, will be first in line to donate blood.

Prior to the July 4 holiday, the Greater Chesapeake & Potomac (GC&P) Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross reported a major decline in blood donations. To date, supplies remain below acceptable levels, especially with blood types O Positive, O Negative and B Negative, said Katie McGuire, director, marketing & communications.

Vyas is encouraging donations by bringing back special deals for all customers during the blood drive and coupons for anyone who donates. In addition, the Red Cross will give out fresh Subway cookies and a t-shirt to those donating and PNC Bank will host a special raffle. "Each donation helps the local Red Cross," said Vyas. "I'm happy to participate and to help out the best I can. While the act of donating blood is rewarding on its own, I hope the extra incentives will get the community to come out," Vyas said.

To donate blood, people must be in generally good health, be at least 17 years old (16 years old with parental consent), weigh no less than 110 pounds, have not received a tattoo within the past year and have not donated whole blood within the past 56 days.

Reel and Meal At the New Deal

The documentary, "The American Elm: Majestic, Imperiled, Renewed" will be shown at the New Deal Café on Monday, July 21 beginning at 7 p.m. It is sponsored by The Reel and Meal at the New Deal, a monthly film series that explores vital environmental and social issues and is sponsored by a consortium of Greenbelt organizations interested in preserving the environment. There is no charge for admission. Beginning at 6:30 p.m. an optional vegan buffet meal will be offered for sale by Chef Karim.

The American elm was the most widely planted, popular and loved urban tree in the United States until its decimation from Dutch elm disease. The 49-minute documentary chronicles the rich legacy of this tree and the discovery of disease-tolerant elms at a time when cities are most in need of tough, fast-growing, large-canopy trees to counter the effects of climate change.

The film highlights the planting of 88 disease-resistant Princeton American elms on Pennsylvania Ave. at the White House; research undertaken by the National Park Service and others to identify disease-resistant cultivars; and ambitious tree-planting programs aimed at rapidly increasing urban forest tree canopies as a way to enhance energy efficiency, improve air and water quality, lessen the effects of storm water runoff and contribute numerous other benefits to greatly depleted urban areas.

Dan Smith, producer and director of the film and senior director of communications for Casey Trees, will lead a discussion of the documentary after the screening. Email sr.kane@verizon.net for more information about this event.

Center Merchants Launch "Shop Local"

On Sunday, July 20, the Roosevelt Center Merchants and the Greenbelt Farmers Market will launch a "Shop Local Campaign" and an "Eat Local Challenge." Merchants and farmers market vendors challenge Greenbelters to patronize at least one Roosevelt Center business every day during the week of July 20 to 26 and to eat at least one locally-grown or -produced food each day.

The continued success of Roosevelt Center rests on regular financial support by Greenbelt households. In turn, businesses make a personal and financial commitment in their community.

In "Big-Box Swindle: The True Cost of Mega-Retailers and the Fight for America's Independent Businesses," author Stacy Mitchell writes, "Local owners are both financially and personally vested in their communities. These community roots and personal connections influence business decisions."

For example, when it's time to underwrite a Greenbelt Little League team, Generous Joe's steps up to the plate. And when the city created a free, day-long event to support family fitness, Greenbelt Om Community Yoga is asked to donate its services.

For more information on the Roosevelt Center Merchants, email President Kim Kash at kkash@greenbeltom.com.

GIVE THANKS

Every breath that we breathe is a blessing from God and we learn from the Prophet Solomon (peace be upon him) to recognize these blessings each day. The Holy Qur'an tells us how he never forgot to be thankful to God. He is quoted to have said, "This is by the grace of my Lord, to test me whether I am grateful or ungrateful! And if any is grateful, it is (a gain) for his own soul; but if any is ungrateful, truly my Lord is free of all needs, supreme in honor."

— The Holy Qur'an, 27:40

Count your blessings every day. For more information about gratefulness from an Islamic perspective, call 301-982-9463 or email info@searchislam.org or visit www.searchislam.org.

follows the right of way reservation to the Virginia Manor Road/Ritz Way intersection to Muirkirk Road. From there construction planned for the Intercounty Connector would extend the road through an ICC interchange and then turn west to connect with a relocated Contee Road.

(Early in the study process, the connection of the ICC to Kenilworth Ave. Extended was removed. The City of Laurel had requested the connection of the ICC to Route 1 and beyond to Kenilworth Ave. Extended.)

Project History

Since the 1970s successive Greenbelt City Councils have fought the extension of Kenilworth Ave./Edmonston Road. It was their belief that such widening would increase traffic, especially trucks, into the city. Similarly earlier city councils have opposed construction of the ICC on the grounds that the proposed highway would hook up with an extended Kenilworth Ave. and funnel traffic through the city to the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and the Capital Beltway.

Still later, in 1987, a stunned city council was angered when Kenilworth Ave. Extended was included on the country's Highway Priority List with the second-highest priority rating. Reacting swiftly, council fired off letters to county and state officials, municipalities along the Kenilworth Ave/Route 1 corridor and to the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Then-mayor Gil Weidenfeld voiced the city council's strong objections to the extension. Weidenfeld believed that Virginia Manor Road could eventually become part of the ICC, another project that the city and county council consistently have opposed.

In October 2007, Mayor Judith Davis sent a letter on behalf of the city council to the Secretary of Maryland's Department of Transportation to express council's strong opposition to the ICC.

"The City continues to be opposed to the Route 201 (Kenilworth Ave.) Extended project and is disappointed to hear that this project is now actively in the planning stage," she stated in the letter.

"This project may encourage further utilization of the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC) property for development and will have significant impacts on wetlands north of the city."

Davis requested that the city be invited to "participate in project team meetings as well as focus group meetings for this project."

Other Alternatives

Of the other alternatives, 2 would only improve 11 intersections along US 1 and MD 201/Edmonston. Alternative 3 would widen and make other major improvements to US 1. Alternative 5 would be the ultimate construction combining alternatives 3 and 4.

be controlled by a programmable timer and interior lights will utilize motion sensors. The city has requested that all lights be fluorescent, though this will reduce the lumens provided. Each room will contain an automated hand drier.

Councilmembers were assured that all wood used by Restroom Solutions, Inc. is farm-grown with every piece graded and stamped. When the resolution was introduced on June 16, council had asked for assurances that the wood did not come from old growth forests.

Staff recommended that the orientation of the building be such that parents at the nearby playground could observe their children enter and exit the building. PRAB members suggested that the orientation be adjusted if possible so access to the building would show from other areas of the park as well.

Increased Expense

The cost of the facility presented in March was $101,584, including $10,000 for shipping and an estimate for installation. The facility now selected will cost $111,670, including $12,477 for non-standard items such as the metal roof, magnetic locks, water heaters, a janitor sink in the mechanical room and the baby-changing stations. The price includes shipping and installation.

The city will be responsible for all permits, utility access and final connections, foundation work and repairs to the site from any transportation damage.

Council was told at the meeting that the site had been reviewed by company representatives and that tree or shrub removal to facilitate the installation would probably not be necessary.

A 50-percent matching grant from the State of Maryland Community Parks and Playgrounds will help finance the project.

Timeline

When the building program is finalized, plans can be completed within 60 days. The city can then file for building permits with the county. Manufacture will take approximately four months. Staff reports it is unknown how long the permit and site preparation process will take but the restrooms could be a reality in approximately six months.

Or visitors may just have to hold it for a little longer.

Safety Belts
"To provide optimal protection for any rider and to be in compliance with Maryland law, the lap portion of a lap/shoulder belt must be worn low and snug across the hips; the shoulder portion must be snug across the chest, away from the neck and face. The shoulder portion should never be worn behind the back or under the arm.

"In older vehicles with separate lap and shoulder restraints, both systems must be used. Improperly wearing a safety belt carries the same penalty as failing to wear a safety belt and can cause more injury in some crashes than if the belt was not used. Consult your vehicle's owner's manual to determine proper use.

"What can be done if the seat belt doesn't fit comfortably? Some smaller people, especially children, may find that the shoulder portion of a lap/shoulder belt rubs their face or neck. Moving the seat forward or backward or shifting slightly in the seat can often relieve uncomfortable rubbing. Additionally, many newer vehicles have restraint systems that can be adjusted. Booster seats can be utilized for children; they provide more safety than the use of the vehicle's restraint system alone.

"If the vehicle's restraint system does not fit larger people, the next step may be to purchase an aftermarket restraint system. Maryland law requires that any belt system installed must meet the Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standards, so it's a good idea to have such a system installed professionally. Some manufacturer's produce safety belt extenders that do not meet the federal standards. Check packaging and labeling to determine compliance; keep supporting documentation with your registration and insurance in the event of a traffic stop or a crash. Some dealers or manufacturers provide extenders free of charge if requested. Devices used to introduce slack into the system do not meet federal safety standards."

“urging the regional administrations” to “skew” any additional funds – should they become available – toward Prince George’s County to make up for existing deficiencies in that county’s system. “Those of you who ride,” Glick said in conclusion, “or would like to ride or to ride more, please make your voices heard.”

After Glick ceded the floor, the VHB and COG representatives reconfigured the room so that six tables were spread throughout the room. At these tables groups of eight or nine leaned over maps, following bus-routes with their fingers or circling their respective homes. A COG representative moderated each of the groups, writing themes and concerns on chart paper.

Major Concerns
The lack of service to Greenbelt on Sundays was a major concern. Others questioned “duplicate coverage” and requested “more routes originating or terminating at the Metro” or “more direct lines to the Metro.” These concerns were echoed by calls for “direct and frequent access to major transit hubs.”

One group stressed the marketing end of the public transportation systems, calling the current labeling of buses a confusing “alphabet soup.”

Mayor Davis, sitting at a table with a group and calling her role in the meeting “low- key,” introduced herself as a resident first and called for greater handicap accessibility in an age when “it is not just wheelchairs anymore.”

VHB plans to wrap up their report in the next month and give it to the city, who will produce the strategic plan and then present it to the county. The mayor placed the meeting within the context of the city’s ongoing visioning process, which she said “is starting to gel.”
